TEACHING RECORD

My teaching occurs on the under- and post-graduate level as well as on the doctoral research level. I coordinate and teach classes with typically around 120-200 students in under-graduate courses and 50-100 students in post-graduate classes. My units have covered information systems, business process management, technology and innovation management, IT and sustainability, entrepreneurship, systems development, and a variety of research topics, among others.

I always entirely re-designed units that I teach, and the resulting improvements in the unit have been recognized through several Teaching Awards.

Since starting my lecturing career, my teaching performance has constantly been amongst the top 5% of faculty, with an overall teaching satisfaction evaluation average of around 4.5/5. I have been recognized for my teaching performance through several university awards.

I am regularly invited to teach at other institutions. In particular I am regularly invited to teach doctoral-level courses based on my scientific research textbook at IS departments in several countries.

I have further been invited to co-develop, and instruct, international post-graduate research courses and to appear on panels on IS/BPM education at international conferences.

CORPORATE AND INDUSTRY ENGAGEMENT

CORPORATE EDUCATION AND COACHING

I regularly teach Executive and MBA courses on topics related to Digital Innovation Leadership, for example, for the Rotterdam School of Management and the DTU Executive MBA Program.

At the University of Cologne, I was Academic Director for the Certificate Programme "Digital Leadership and Innovation", consisting of six modules. I delivered three modules in this programme as well as in the Executive MBA Program by RSM and University of Cologne, namely Digital Innovation Leadership, Agile & Lean Organizing for Innovation, and Digital Innovation Capstone Project.

*At Queensland University of Technology, I co-developed the Continuing Professional Education BPM training program (with Prof. Michael Rosemann), which started in 2006 and delivers corporate education programs in business process and strategic management. Since, I have taken roles as CPE Manager and (until June 2012) Academic Director for Consultancy and CPE in the Information Systems School. Under my management, we have increased the external engagement with industry clients through CPE every year, and provided CPE training to more than forty Australian-based organizations, generating a total income in excess of AU$1,000,000. Training offerings now also include IS courses on smart phones, databases, enterprise systems, innovation and other topics. CONSULTANCY ENGAGEMENTS

I periodically engage in consultancy and coaching engagements. For example, since 2018 I act as IT advisor for the DHV in Bonn. I am also a board member for the company GuideCom (Münster, Westfalen). I advise several companies on their product development and digital business strategies, and I have been scientific advisor for multiple startups, such as GoFlux, Mooncamp, LoLoCo, Vytal, Voids, and Hivesound.AI.

In Australia, prior to the establishment of the Woolworths Chair of Retail Innovation, I had a working relationship with Woolworths Ltd. that dates to 2009, providing consultancy and research on various topics related to process management, improvement and innovation, amongst others, with BWS, BTS, HR and Big W. I also worked with several other large Australian organizations, including SAP, ATO, Hargreaves, IP Australia, Australian Federal Police, Suncorp, Ergon, Stanwell, Federal and State Government, and others. Much of this consultancy concerned the establishment and development of management capabilities for process improvement and organizational innovation.
